

Coverage College 2020

10.22.20

The 14th Annual White and Williams Coverage College® will be hosted virtually on October 22, 2020. While some colleges and universities have started in-person classes, Coverage College will be virtual this year.

Although we may not be together in person, we will still provide advanced-level classes on a variety of cutting edge issues impacting the insurance industry as well as opportunities to network and meet new people from the comfort of your home or office.

Students can choose from two "tracks" on a variety of coverage and liability issues. The College also features two General Sessions that will address social inflation and the insurance industry and an overview of some of the most influential cases of the past few years that made the Greatest Hits list.
